Lexington resident assumes command of 241st Engineering and Installation Squadron

NASHVILLE – Major Todd Huston, of Lexington, Tenn., assumed command of the Tennessee Air National Guard's 241st Engineering and Installation Squadron in a ceremony held Jan. 10 in Chattanooga.

The squadron of 120 personnel is responsible for mobilizing and deploying worldwide to accomplish engineering and installation of fixed command, control, communications and computer systems. Currently 28 members of the unit are deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan.

Huston received his commission through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps at Ohio State University in 1991. He served eight years on active duty as a Communications-Computer Officer, where he gained a wide range of experience at Randolph Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas; Falcon Air Force Base, Colorado Springs, Colo. and Geilenkirchen NATO Air Base, Germany.

Earlier in his career Huston was employed with IBM as a Senior Project Manager. He joined the Air National Guard in 2001 as Chief of Network Operations Branch for the 290th Joint Communication Support Squadron at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla. He also served on active duty for 18 months during Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom as commander of the 290th when they deployed to the Philippines and Pakistan.

Huston transferred to the 241st Engineering and Installation Squadron in Chattanooga in February 2004. He served as the Installation Flight Commander and the Logistics Support Flight Commander prior to assuming his current position.
